Written and Directed by
Danny Hoch

September 4 - October 21, 2007
Tues. - Sat. @ 8pm, Sat. & Sun. @ 2pm

Opening Night: September 13

In Till The Break of Dawn, Gibran, an internet hip-hop activist, leads a group of his New York friends on a trip to Havana to attend a festival. They've always been radical at home, but in Cuba, radical means something else. So does hip-hop, and so do they. Watch as hip-hop politics, South Bronx angst and Cuban reality all clash in this raucous and provocative play from the author of Some People and Jails, Hospitals & Hip-Hop.
